

Neven Maguire series broadcast in UK for first time

[18 September 09] Award-winning chef, Neven Maguire, will make his first appearance on the Good Food Channel's flagship show, the prestigious 'Market Kitchen', this week (from Monday, Sept 21st). Maguire's appearance on Market Kitchen coincides with his latest TV series 'Neven's Food from the Sun' being broadcast on the UK channel for the first time.

With an audience of over two million viewers, Market Kitchen has more than doubled its audience reach since it first hit the airwaves in 2007. Presented by Amanda Lambe and Matt Tebutt, Maguire was also joined on the show by Jo Wood, former wife of Rolling Stone's Ronnie Wood and UK chef and author Galton Blackiston.

"It was a real honour to go on Market Kitchen and I thoroughly enjoyed recording the show", says Maguire, chef/owner of MacNean House & Restaurant. "With my next book being released in November, I hope this will be start of further appearances in the UK."

Following the success of 'Neven's Food from the Sun' series on RTE 1 and now featuring on the Good Food channel, Neven is getting ready to begin filming his new series, titled 'Home Chef'. This series will see him visit a number of local producers across Ireland and demonstrating recipes from his own kitchen in Blacklion, Co. Cavan, using the very best of Irish produce.

Accompanying this series, Neven's new book, also titled 'Home Chef', will be released in November. Having sold over 100,000 books worldwide, this will be Neven's seventh book over the past ten years.
